

New wool store opens its doors

THE official opening of Gulargambone's new Quality Wool store was held on Monday.

Clients and friends from around the district travelled to Gulargambone's old saw mill to officially open the wool store.

Quality Wool's Managing Director Mark Dyson said the company was pleased to be investing in a region where it was attracting increasing support from growers, and coinciding with an exciting time for the wool market.

"Woolgrowers through the 2017-18 season have enjoyed excellent market conditions, with record prices received," Mr Dyson said.

"Demand from Europe has recently increased, particularly for finer worsted wools.

"Crossbred wools have also recovered from pre-Christmas falls due to increasing demand from China.

"Now that most of the Chinese industry is returning from New Year celebrations, I believe this will create renewed interest and activity in the marketplace.

"The trend augurs well for most wool categories in the season ahead, with the forward market also showing good signs of stability."

Will Redington is the Quality Wool representative who covers an area including Coonamble, Gilgandra, Warren and Warrumbungle Shires.

Will has been working as a rep with Quality Wool for three and a half years and has built strong relationships with all of his clients.

[continued page 14]